Cobalt Blue Turbo Story

I took these pictures throughout Fall of 2007. I even took a picture of when I mounted. 😊

Last picture thread from me for tonight, I promise. Just got a little bit "flickr" h gorgeous my favorite Turbo to date but u should have kept the Turbo rims in my opinion they are way hotter... (not to take away from ur current rims.. nice.. but don't do the Turbo justice.. a Carrera, yes... a Turbo, never)

but hey, it's your car/choice

Yeah, right...you took these pictures. Here are details of the pictures THAT

- 1) Pebble Beach, CA on my breaking in trip.
- 2) Taken in the service bay at Barrier Motors in Bellevue, WA after the wheel
- 3) Taken after black lugnuts were installed
- 4) Taken behind Krispy Kreme in Seattle, WA
- 5) Taken in the underground parking garage of Lincoln Square in Bellevue,
- 6) Taken inside my garage.

7) I hit 996 then 997 miles just as I got to the photoshoot site with ItzKirb wow, The Metro, if what atomic80 posted is true, then you're very pathetic. What joy do you get out of posting pictures of other people's car and claiming it's yours? Hell, I don't even post pictures of my own car on here (except for my signature pic).

So, I'm guessing he doesn't have the 2008 M5, and he's not going to get the Alpina B7 like he said he would.

And I seriously doubt that he's going to get that B7. I saw one of those things in Europe last spring and they're freaking sweet up close!

Also, a question, that steering wheel looks pretty awesome, that's standard in the Turbo? or optional equipment?

I never really liked the factory wheels. Looks too much like the older Eclipse wheels. Doesn't fit the lines of the Turbo too well. But you're right, everyone has their own opinions.
